

Need a videographer to document the spirit of your special event?

Marlow's been capturing still and moving images for over thirty years. As a CBS news videographer-editor, Shami was nominated for a New England Emmy and the Matrix Award. Her award-winning documentary, Coming Out of Violence, commissioned by the US Commission on Civil Rights & Opportunities, was one of the first domestic violence documentary programs produced.

I loved Marlow's uncanny ability to capture the critical elements. She is extremely sensitive to participants and is never intrusive. We hardly realize she's around, yet would miss her terribly if she wasn't.

~Tim Churchard, Professor of Business, University Of New Hampshire, Corporate Consultant

The most powerful and imaginative video work I have seen from any videographer we have used in the past twelve years. Marlow is always my first choice.

~Carl Christensen, C. Christenson Association Management Consulting Firm

I've known Marlow as a talented news photographer who worked quickly and skillfully and never failed to get the essence of the story.

~Dick Ahles, Vice President of News WFSB TV3, Hartford, Connecticut, a CBS affiliate

I just watched the DVD you made of "Heroes & Villains". WOW -- given the restrictions under which we had you laboring, the quality is absolutely amazing!!! What a great gift to all of us, our only chance to see ourselves perform!

~Victorya MaCavoy, Actor

Marlow is a flexible and talented team player when it comes to her work at Aetna. In particular, her expertise as an experiential videographer has been in great demand by our trainers. ~

M.E. Parkinson, Administrator, Visual Communications, Aetna Life & Casualty

Marlow has videotaped and edited my work as a stand up comedian, musician, and actor many times over the years. Her seasoned skills, inconspicuous presence, and intuitive nature always captures spirit of my work..

~Nancy Tucker, musician/humorist

I am always nervous about looking good enough in photos and not only did Marlow put me at ease, but I was surprised at how natural and relaxed I looked. She was able to bring out an essence of me that even I could see!

~Becca Anderson, musician & professional therapist.

Marlow captures the essence of the moment. She has the creativity to take interesting angles and the sensitivity to portray people at their best. She is an absolute pleasure to work with

~Pam McPhee, Coordinator of Corporate Outreach Services/ University of New Hampshire

I'm impressed with Marlow's skill as a portrait and event photographer. She took a series of portrait shots for our wedding program and there were so many good ones, it was hard to select the best. She is easy to work with, comfortable at making people feel at ease and bringing out each person's beauty and most natural smile. I'd recommend her to anyone looking for a cheerful, professional photographer for events or portrait work.

~Mary Carroll Moore, novelist, teacher, artist

You captured the moments and expressions which convey the spirit of how I relate to students. You were able to take photos during sensitive and emotional discussions - the students hardly seemed to notice you were there! And the promotional portrait shots for my performances were so natural and relaxed. I don't know how you managed to instantly put me at ease!

~Cyd Slotoroff, Performer and Artist-Educator
